

Dominica optical cable price

Article Overview

Optical fiber cables in the Caribbean region, including Dominica, are estimated at around $5,000-$6,000 per ton for imports, with export prices significantly higher depending on quality and origin.

Current Market Overview

While specific Dominica pricing is not publicly listed, Dominican Republic data provides a useful regional benchmark. In 2025, the average import price of optical fiber cables in the Dominican Republic was approximately $5,730 per ton, reflecting a 38% increase from the previous year. Prices vary by country of origin, with cables from the United States costing around $22,503 per ton, while Chinese imports were among the lowest at $5,274 per ton. Export prices from the Dominican Republic were much higher, averaging $305,725 per ton in 2025, though export volumes were minimal, indicating a niche market for high-value cables (IndexBox) .

Cable Types and Characteristics

Optical cables are classified by fiber type and installation method. For example, Mini ADSS (All Dielectric Self-Supported) cables are designed for aerial installations and provide tensile resistance for pole-to-pole setups. Cables can be single-mode or multi-mode, with protective sheaths and optional armor for underground or underwater deployment. Prices can vary depending on core count, fiber type, and environmental protection (Uni-Fiber Cable) .
